FACTS ABOUT VACCINATION

Preparation of Vaccine.

The living virus of vaccine is contained in the liquid matter and the dried scab of a vaccination sore. The original vaccinations were made by the transfer of the virus from a cow to a person; and then came the methods of transmitting it from one person to another; and then that of from a person to a calf and back to a person. The fresh virus or scabs were first used, then virus dried on bone splints, and then virus preserved in a 50 per cent solution of glycerin. The present method of production adopted by the Department of Health of New York City is as follows:

1. Fresh virus from a healthy person is inoculated into a calf.
2. The calf virus is inoculated into a rabbit.
3. The rabbit virus is transferred to a calf, and the virus then produced is that which is distributed for vaccinating human beings.

One of the principal objects in passing the virus through three animals is to exclude the possibility of the transfer of human disease germs from one person to another. It might be possible that some of the original germs would survive if they were passed through only one animal, but hardly probable if they passed through three. It is conceivable that some human germs might live in a calf, but it is extremely improbable that any human germs would survive in both a calf and a rabbit.

The calves on which the commercial virus is grown are young stock. They are fed on milk alone, and are placed without bedding in concrete stalls which are kept as clean as a surgical ward in a hospital. All the operations on the calves are done in an operating-room with tile floors and walls, and are performed with the same cleanliness and asepsis as operations on human beings. When a calf is inoculated, the skin on the hinder part of the abdomen and inner surface of the thighs is shaved and cleansed, and the virus is introduced with the same care that would be observed in operating on a human being. The contents of the vesicles are collected on about the sixth day. The pulp is mixed with four times its bulk of a solution of 50 per cent glycerin, 49 per cent water and 1 per cent carbolic acid, and is allowed to stand at least five weeks while the glycerin and carbolic acid slowly kill the bacteria that may be present. Bacteriologic tests are made frequently until no growth is obtained on the media. Inoculation tests are also made for lockjaw and various other germs. If all the tests are satisfactory, the vaccine is tested on fifteen unvaccinated children. All must be successful before the vaccine is distributed to physicians. Every known precaution is taken that the vaccine shall be active and free from bacteria or germs.

The commercial vaccine that is made for the market is produced under the supervision of the Federal Government, and by the same methods that are followed in New York City.

The Best Time to Be Vaccinated
Except during epidemics, the physician should realize the advisability of vaccinating during the fall, winter and spring months. Not only is the quality of vaccine better in winter, but there is much less danger of wound contamination.

Course of a Vaccination
The course of a successful vaccination is as follows:
First to fourth day, nothing.
Fifth day, slight redness along the line of the scratching.

Sixth day, a vesicle begins to appear.

Seventh day, the vesicle is well formed, and a red areola begins to surround it.

Eighth and ninth days, the vesicle is fully formed. It is about one half inch in diameter, and its areola about one and one half inches.

Fourteenth day, it has dried to a brown, raised scab, which looks like a button upon the skin.

Twenty-eighth day, the button has fallen, leaving a scar. The scar left will not exceed one half inch in diameter, and will often be smaller. A scar one inch or more in diameter is usually evidence that the sore has been infected.

Sources of Danger

Vaccination produces an inflammation of the skin and a sore which is subject to the same accidents and dangers as any other sore. The dangers are those of infection with germs of human diseases, but they are less than those which threaten an ordinary cut finger. The possible sources of danger are well known, and may readily be prevented.

Opposition to Vaccination

The rarity of cases of small pox leads many persons to regard vaccination as an unnecessary and even dangerous procedure. One of their arguments is that vaccination is unsound in principle. They argue that it is wrong to introduce matter from a loathsome sore into the body. They seem to believe that the matter remains in the body. Not only does it not remain in the body, but it excites the body to produce defensive substances which destroy it and then remain in the blood ready to destroy any other collection of similar matter that may enter the body. A very few persons have the defensive substances in their blood from birth, but most persons will not produce it until their bodies are in actual contact with the virus. Those who oppose vaccination are like parents who are unwilling that their children should go into the water until they know how to swim. A very few children are able to swim at the first trial, but most children have to learn to swim by subjecting themselves to the discomforts of the water. In the same manner, the body learns to produce defensive substances against small pox by its experience with the harmless virus of vaccination.

A second argument against vaccination is that a vaccination sore produces more discomfort and sickness than small pox itself. Those who give this argument believe that small pox has changed its character and has ceased to be a deadly disease. They also believe that vaccination necessarily produces great discomfort and sickness. It is true that most cases of small pox are now mild, but the virulence of all contagious diseases varies from year to year. Scarlet fever now exists in a mild form, while infantile paralysis is ten times more fatal than ever before. The modern vaccination produces only slight discomfort, and its dangers can be readily foreseen and prevented. A third argument against vaccination is that it may transmit diseases such as septicemia, tetanus, tuberculosis, and syphilis. The precautions which are now taken insure the purity of the virus, and ordinary surgical cleanliness prevents the introduction of germs during the operation.

A fourth argument against vaccination is that it is unnecessary since small pox has nearly disappeared from civilized lands. This same kind of argument would hold against the purchase of an apparatus for fighting fire, and against making buildings fireproof. Absence of fire for a year, or for ten years, does not mean an absence

THE FUR MARKET

JUNEAU, ALASKA—Dec. 9—Market conditions today are considerably weaker on much fur commodities. We consider mink 20 per cent off; otter, July prices; bear, 15 per cent off; lynx, good demand; all foxes from 20 to 10 per cent off. All indications point to a further decline in March, as prices have been boosted too high, consequently curtailing the demand.

CRAIG NOTES

The Craig steam laundry is closed temporarily. Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Spencer the proprietors, have gone to Seattle to buy more machinery, and also for a visit to their parents.

Jack Burton has been learning to dance. After a recent dance he went home and went to bed, but dancing was so much on his mind that he got out of bed at 2 a.m. and awakened his brother Harry to show him a new step. Now Harry has got the bug and is learning "to two-step too."

Tom Francis has just returned from a week's hunting trip. The game he bagged made his back so weak that he never reached Craig with it. We trust he will have better luck next time.

Mrs. John R. Smith has returned from Ketchikan where she went to meet her daughter and granddaughter who will spend the winter with her and Grandpa Scotty.

Herman Olsen and and Ragnar Dahl have gone to Petersburg.

We hope that by this time next week Charlie Cloudy will be able to bend his leg which he hurt some time ago while playing in the basketball team at Klawock.

We wonder why Rudolph Palm is finishing his new home in Craig so soon. We hope the spring time will explain.

We wonder why Scotty Smith has been so cross lately. Can it be because he has been cutting a winter supply of wood for a change?

Capt. Vonsolo of the Salome has promised to take the ladies of Craig to Klawock on a skating expedition in the near future. The captain says rough weather makes no difference to him and the only thing that could stop him from giving the ladies a trip would be Mrs. Vonsolo.

Good many appear to be frightened about the prophesied storm of December 17. When it is remembered that the pull of a planet varies inversely as the square of the distance, and when the immense distance, and the small specific gravity of the outside four planets is considered, it can easily be shown that even if all the 8 planets were in conjunction, which they will not be on December 17, the pull of the earth on the sun's photosphere would not be increased one-tenth of one per cent. So all prophecies about any unusual storms December 17 are nonsense.

L. P. Wilson of Bayview was a Wrangell visitor this week.

ot danger that a fire will occur. Experience shows that small pox is likely to break out in an unvaccinated community just as fires occur among wooden buildings.

These facts are taken from the very latest authorities on the subject and are published for the information of the people of this community.

Republicans Endorse Heckman for National Committeeman

KETCHIKAN—The endorsement of J. R. Heckman for Republican national committeeman by the Cordova Republican club yesterday was followed last night by the organization of the Ketchikan Republican club and the unanimous endorsement of Heckman.

Senator Heckman has not yet agreed to accept, but it is confidently believed that he will issue a statement today accepting the nomination. Reports from the Interior, Nome, and all the coast towns, indicate a strong sentiment for Heckman among the Republicans.

SCHOOL NOTES

By Liberty Worden

The girls of the grammar and high school met on Wednesday, December third for the purpose of organizing a handwork club. Ballots were cast for a name for the club, and for officers. The name chosen was "Lend a Hand." Marjorie Shaffner was elected president and Ruth Tucker, secretary. The club will hold weekly meetings, every Wednesday from 2:20 to 3:05 p. m.

The schools throughout Alaska observed "Better English Week" December 1st to 6th and the Wrangell schools are proud of the result. The students of the high school prepared papers resolving that they would do their utmost to improve their articulation as well as using fewer slang expressions. Posters were made by Miss O'Connor and Liberty Worden and placed on the walls of the buildings to help those who have made good resolutions, keep them.

Noted Big Game Hunter Reaches His Home

Ralph Edmunds Says
He Is Coming Back
In the Spring

(Los Angeles Times)

After many stirring experiences in which he faced death many times, Ralph Edmunds, internationally-known hunter of big game, scientist and writer, arrived home yesterday morning, after a three months' trip to the wilds of Yukon territory.

While the trip was one of the most perilous that this fearless man, who is known throughout North America as one of the world's greatest rifle shots, has ever had, it was, he declares, one of the most interesting and decidedly the most fruitful trip he has ever taken, as far as trophies and scientific results are concerned.

In the very heart of the wildest country in the great Northwest, Mr. Edmunds found game so plentiful that he declares the average hunter would not believe it possible.

"There is no use to tell you how many deer and caribou, sheep and bears we saw in that country; your readers would not believe you," he said yesterday.

In a territory, two miles by four miles in dimensions, he saw woodland caribou, barren ground caribou, white sheep, black sheep, the largest moose he ever saw, and there were thousands of them as well as black, brown and grizzly bears, and the vicious gray Arctic wolves and lynx.

"Why, one time," he said, "I saw a big grizzly bear walk up to the body of a caribou which must have weighed 1500 pounds, pick it up by the ham and shake it as I would pick up a leaf and shake it."

In the particular region where Mr. Edmunds hunted the severe cold begins much earlier than in other districts of the Yukon. But Mr. Edmunds was so enthusiastic that he failed to heed the warning of his guides and remained in the wilds until it was too late for packing. As a result his numerous trophies, rifles and tents had to be cached at a lone trapper's cabin on Mica creek.

While the trip was filled with excitement and narrow escapes, Mr. Edmunds declared, yesterday, that it was joyous and he proposes to return North again next spring, secure his trophies and do further exploring of this unknown country.

Demand For Raw Furs Was Never Greater

Read What a Few of the Buyers Have
To Say

Trappers will be well paid for their time and efforts this winter.
An unusually good demand and high prices will prevail for fur-bearers. Every member of the Fox family is popular and bringing high prices. Fisher is a close second and the price is very high.
It will take millions of Muskrat
to satisfy the American consumption. The Hudson Seal coat is in the height of its popularity.
American dyers are enlarging their shops to increase their capacity for seal dyeing. Every fur-bearer collected in this season will command high market
prices.—A. B. Shubert, Inc., Chicago.

The market is opening up extremely high and while we have a wonderful demand for everything on the list at good prices
we just want to sound a note of warning that prices are awfully high, and general conditions are somewhat unsettled, and labor troubles might have a depressing effect, so we believe that the best advice we can give you is to ship
just as fast as you get enough to make a fair-sized shipment.—
Funsten Bros. & Co., St. Louis.

Fur prices are dangerously high and we can see no sane reason for speculation on the part of trappers or country collectors.
The market is in a good, healthy condition, and in our opinion present prices will be maintained for some time to come, but if there is any change in the future
we think it will be lower rather than higher.—Abraham Fur Co., St. Louis.

Last year we thought the zenith of high raw fur prices was reached, but indications are that some of the more common furs will advance still higher, owing to a greater demand than supply.
That a lot of trapping will be done
this season is not doubted, but it is not likely the market will be slumped. There will not only be a big domestic demand for furs,
but also a depleted European market to cater to. Of interest to the farm trapper is the fact that the common fur bearers are the ones that will net the trapper the most money. Muskrat, skunk, mink, 'coon, weasel and fox are all greatly in demand and will bring high prices this coming season.—Weil Bros. & Co., Fort Wayne, Ind.

Fur prices are clear out of sight—higher even than you and I ever dreamed of, and it is my prediction that every piece of fur which will come to our Denver
market this season will command
a higher price than ever before in the history of the fur business.
You have before you today the greatest opportunity for making big fur profits that you have ever had in your life—greater than you will probably ever have again in your life—even greater than last season, and that is certainly going some.—E. A. Stephens & Co., Denver.

In all my experience, I have never known fur prices to be as high as they are right now.
Frankly, I don't see how they can go any higher—and they may go lower. I am absolutely honest and sincere when I tell you that the time has come to cash in on every fur you have on hand—every fur that you can buy from your friends and neighbors.—Alex

Berg, Pres. Hill Bros. Co., St.
Louis.

There has never before been so strong a demand by so great a buying power as is now evident.
Purchases are being made by dealers and manufacturers not only for local consumption, but for shipment for foreign account.
The experience of previous years indicate that possibly higher prices will prevail as the season
advances.—J. L. Prouty's Sons,
New York.

We are pleased to state that the prospects now look unusually bright for one of the most successful seasons the fur trade has ever known, and a general feeling of optimism prevails.—M. J.
Jewett & Sons, Redwood, New York.

This is a big year for the trapper. Fur stocks are practically cleaned up and manufacturers are bare, therefore all indications point that the demand for raw furs will continue strong. But do not hoard your furs for later sale. Ship today while the prices are at the top and supply the shortest. In many cases the early unprime collection of furs is apt to command full prices to supply
the immediate demand.—The Co-Operative Raw Fur Co., Detroit, Mich.

The London Fall sales compared with Spring sales show marked declines in some furs. Reports are coming in that large quantities of furs were bought in by the owners and much merchandise remained unsold on account of limits based upon the abnormally high prices that have prevailed in the States. The market here will undoubtedly reflect the London market to a great extent.
Whether this is a temporary flurry downward in the Fur Market or an indication of permanent and still lower prices, we will not attempt to say.—West Coast Grocery Co., Tacoma.

Fur stocks carried over from last season, are very low. As a result there is a big demand for the new catch. Fur styles were never so popular in this country and reports state that the same condition prevails in Europe. The world wants American furs. As a result of the big shortage the heavy demand now is for the blue, early caught skins. We believe these furs will bring more at this time than they will after the prime furs come to the market.—Lincoln Hide and Fur Co., Lincoln, Nebraska.

Furs are higher than a cat's back and there is big money in sight for you if you work hard,
run a long line of traps, and then ship to us.—A. St. Louis Fur company.

Bayview Notes

John Darrow arrived from Bayview on the Glenora last week. They left on the City of Seattle for Douglas where they will have charge of the Native work of the Salvation Army during the winter.

Mr. Darrow says that Bayview is forging ahead all the time. Thirteen new houses have been built this year. Ninety pupils are enrolled in the school. All the teachers are cooperating with the citizens in working for the uplift of the community.

The Native Sisterhood and the Native Brotherhood are big factors in the fraternal and social life of the community. A basket social was given recently by the Sisterhood. Some of the baskets sold as high as $50. The Sisterhood turned $300 over to the town council to be used for public improvements.

The Presbyterian Church and the Salvation Army are cooperating in religious work. The Salvation Army holds a service at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. There is preaching at the Presbyterian Church at 10:30 Sunday morning. The Church and the Army each have their separate Sunday schools at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon. At 7 o'clock Sunday evening there is a union service in the Salvation Army hall at 7 to which the general public is invited. All religious services in Bayview are well attended.

At the recent municipal election at Bayview the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Mayor—William Benson.
 City Judge—John Skan.
 City Marshal—W. J. Chuck.
 Councilmen—Frank Peratovich, Clyde Field, Willie Jones, Conkey Snuck, Thaddeus Isaac, William Stewart, Sam Thomas, Peter Roberts.

George Peratovich is starting work on his new restaurant building.

Nick Peratovich will open his new barber shop next week, for which a full line of barber supplies has been received. An up-to-date bath-house will be operating.

World's Smallest Republic.

The smallest republic in the world, so far as area is concerned, is St. Goust, situated in an almost inaccessible part of the Basses-Pyrenees. St. Goust is hardly a square mile in area, with a population of practically 130 persons, who rule themselves. The president is elected by a council of twelve, chosen for five years by the people, and he is likewise judge, assessor and tax collector. This little republic has been ruled, it is said, for more than 2,000 years through a council of elders. The smallest self-governed state in the world in regard to population is Tavorara, an island but little known off the north coast of Sardinia. It is about five miles long, with an average width of half a mile, yet it is a free and independent republic of about seventy inhabitants, who are their own rulers.

Eternal Leap Years.

There exists at least one place in the world where men consider it below their dignity to notice women at all, much less to make overtures of marriage. Consequently the proposing is left to the women. When a New Guinea woman falls in love with a man she sends a piece of string to his sister, or, if he has no sister, to his mother or another of his lady relatives. Then the lady who receives the string tells the favored man that the particular woman is in love with him. No courting follows, however, for it is considered beneath a New Guinea man's dignity to waste time in such a pursuit. If a man thinks he would like to wed the lady, he meets her alone, and they decide whether to marry or drop the idea.

One O'Clock.

The Dog Star and Aldebaran, pointing to the restless Pleiades, were halfway up the southern sky, and between them hung Orion, which gorgeous constellation never burnt more vividly than now, as it swung itself forth above the rim of the landscape. Castor and Pollux with their quiet shine were almost on the meridian; the barren and gloomy square of Pegasus was creeping round to the northwest; far away through the plantation, Vega sparkled like a lamp, suspended amid the leafless trees, and Cassiopeia's chair stood dimly poised on the uppermost boughs. "One o'clock," said Gabriel.—Thomas Hardy.

Dream Reveals Crime.

A dream once played its part in a celebrated criminal case—the "Red Barn Murder"—the memory of which is kept alive by the melodrama still played in country towns in England. Mrs. Marten, the mother of Maria Marten, the victim, dreamed three successive nights that her daughter had been murdered and buried in the red barn. She insisted that the floor should be taken up. This was done and the body of the missing girl was found, and constituted a link in the chain of circumstantial evidence on which the murderer, William Corder, was convicted and executed in August, 1828.

Birth Peculiarities.

Girls, like boys, inherit many of the predominant characteristics of their parents. The girl baby of young parents will grow up into an energetic, courageous, go-ahead athletic type. So far as physical beauty is concerned, however, it is curious to note that some of the world's most beautiful women were the children of mothers and fathers past their fortieth year. It will often be found that the youngest girl in a family is not only prettier but also cleverer than her sisters, in the same way that the youngest son will often be the most intellectual though the least endowed with physical strength.

CARE OF THE EYES

The following excellent suggestions on the care of the eyes have been issued by the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness. They are well worth reading and remembering:

Don't rub your eyes with dirty hands.

Wear glasses if the doctor advises you to do so.

Don't use your eyes in a poor or flickering light.

If you suspect eye trouble, see an oculist at once.

Don't let anyone but an oculist examine your eyes.

Hold your work or book 14 or 15 inches from your eyes.

Have the light shine on your work or book—not in your eyes.

Don't use other people's towels, wash-cloths, handkerchiefs, etc.

Have sore eyes and granulated lids treated promptly, and as long as the doctor thinks necessary.

Take as good care of your eyes as you would of your watch. You can buy a new watch, but you can't buy new eyes.

FLASHLIGHTS

Anyhow you never hear of a man accusing his wife of driving him to near-beer.

An easy way to make friends is never to have an opinion of your own, but it's a poor way to keep them.

Any married woman will tell you that the toughest job she has is to be nice to her husband's business friends.

A man isn't half as mean the next day when he's had time to think it over as he said he would be the day before when he had lost his temper.

There's a lot of gladness in this world, but every now and then you bump into the sore-head who seems to think his mission on earth is to spoil it all.

When a woman really wants to spend more money for a gown or a hat than she really ought to she gets her husband to go along to help make the selection.—Detroit Free Press.

God Gave You Health. Thank Him For It. Go to Church.

OME people never think of God until a loved one is ill or a great trouble besets them. Then they seek the SOLACE OF RELIGION. A clergyman is called in, and prayers are said at the bedside for the loved one's recovery. God is MERCIFUL, and oftentimes these prayers are answered, and the loved one recovers.

IT IS NOT FAIR TO GOD, HOWEVER, TO ASK HIM TO REMEMBER YOU WHEN YOU HAVE FORGOTTEN HIM. WHEN EVERYTHING IS GOING ALONG SMOOTHLY AND THE WORLD LOOKS BRIGHT SOME MEN FORGET THERE IS A GOD. THEY

NEVER GO TO CHURCH. WHILE THEY WILL RESENT THE CHARGE THAT THEY WOULD OPENLY OFFEND GOD, THEY OFFEND HIM DEEPLY BY NOT GOING TO CHURCH. THE SUCCESSFUL MAN SHOULD GO TO CHURCH TO THANK GOD FOR HIS WORLDLY GIFTS. THE SUPREME BEING GAVE HIM ALL HE HAS—LIFE, HEALTH, HAPPINESS—AND HE SHOULD THANK HIM FOR THEM.

Thanks to the GO TO CHURCH movement, there has been a religious awakening over the land. RELIGION NEVER WAS DEAD. All that it required was a stimulus, and that stimulus was provided by the GO TO CHURCH campaign. It should not be necessary to urge men to GO TO CHURCH. There isn't an argument that can be advanced by any man who believes in God in favor of staying away from church. Take away the churches and you will have a condition bordering on anarchy.

The man who GOES TO CHURCH is prepared to MEET ANY CRISIS, moral, physical or financial. His faith in a Supreme Being sustains him in the most severe trials.

JOIN THE GO TO CHURCH THROG NEXT SUNDAY.
